NEWSLETTER

FALL > 2016

100 E. STUART AVENUE LAKE WALES, FL 33853 863-678-1779

www.PatCain.com

NEWSLETTER

= office UPDATE =

RAYMOND JAMES®

JAMES®

Securities offered through Raymond James Financial Services, Inc. Member FINRA/SIPC.

We hope you all have enjoyed your summer. Pat spent some time in his North Carolina office and ended the summer with a trip to France. He and Nancy retraced Nancy's father's WWII footsteps from his time spent serving in the Army. Tom and Karla Campbell, clients and friends, joined them on this journey. The history of each location was moving and left them all feeling proud to be an American.

Becca and Ryan enjoyed their summer locally. Ryan wrapped up his year as the class coordinator for Leadership Lake Wales. The twins started Kindergarten this school year and they have been loving all of the art classes offered at their new school as well as their teachers and friends. Jonah turned 6-months old this month and continues to get bigger and outgrow his outfits. He laughs uncontrollably at just about anything his big sisters do to entertain him.

Kim and Rodney enjoyed a family trip to Horseshoe Beach this summer. They had a great time fishing and were able to get their limit of scallops each day; I think they're already counting down until next summer's visit. Her son, Nick, has officially began his career with the USAF and relocated to Minot, ND. We're betting his winter will be a "tad" cooler than ours here in Florida, but Nick seems to be looking forward to it all.

Please mark your calendars for the evening of December 9th. We will be hosting our Holiday open house. It is the same night as Make It Magical in downtown Lake Wales, and we hope you will join us for the holiday festivities. We are working on bringing Jeff Saut back for the 5th annual Lake Wales Chamber of Commerce economic forum. He is the Chief Investment Strategist at Raymond James and often appears on CNBC, Fox Business Network, Bloomberg and others. Each year we have been blessed to have him come and speak to the Lake Wales community and we hope this next year will prove to be more insightful as we'll have the election behind us. If you haven't attended in the past, we urge to join us. More details to follow here.

FALL • 2016

This information, developed by an independent third party, has been obtained from sources considered to be reliable, but Raymond James Financial Services, Inc. does not guarantee that the foregoing material is accurate or complete. This information is not a complete summary or statement of all available data necessary for making an investment decision and does not constitute a recommendation. The information contained in this report does not purport to be a complete description of the securities, markets, or developments referred to in this material. This information is not intended as a solicitation or an offer to buy or sell any security referred to herein. Investments mentioned may not be suitable for all investors. The material is general in nature. Past performance may not be indicative of future results. Raymond James Financial Services, Inc. does not provide advice on tax, legal or mortgage issues. These matters should be discussed with the appropriate professional. Securities offered through Raymond James Financial Services, Inc., member FINRA/ SIPC, an independent broker/dealer, and are not insured by FDIC, NCUA or any other government agency, are not deposits or obligations of the financial institution, are not guaranteed by the financial institution, and are subject to risks, including the possible loss of principal.

www.PatCain.com

NEWSLETTER

= economicsNAPSHOT =

HOLDING EQUITIES FOR THE LONG TERM: TIME VERSUS TIMING

Legendary investor Warren Buffett is famous for his longterm perspective. He has said that he likes to make investments he would be comfortable holding even if the market shut down for 10 years.

Investing with an eye to the long term is particularly important with stocks. Historically, equities have typically outperformed bonds, cash, and inflation, though past performance is no guarantee of future results and those returns also have involved higher volatility.

It can be challenging to have Buffett-like patience during periods such as 2000-2002, when the stock market fell for 3 years in a row, or 2008, which was the worst year for the Standard & Poor's 500* since the Depression era. Times like those can frazzle the nerves of any investor, even the pros. With stocks, having an investing strategy is only half the battle; the other half is being able to stick to it.

JUST WHAT IS LONG TERM?

Your own definition of "long term" is most important, and will depend in part on your individual financial goals and when you want to achieve them. A 70-year-old retiree may have a shorter "long term" than a 30 year old who's saving for retirement. Your strategy should take into account that the market will not go in one direction forever–either up or down. However, it's instructive to look at various holding periods for equities over the years. Historically, the shorter your holding period, the greater the chance of experiencing a loss. It's true that the S&P 500 showed negative returns for the two 10-year periods ending in 2008 and 2009, which encompassed both the tech crash and the credit crisis. However, the last negative-return 10-year period before then ended in 1939, and each of the trailing 10-year periods since 2010 have also been positive.*

THE BENEFITS OF PATIENCE

Trying to second-guess the market can be challenging at best; even professionals often have trouble. According to "Behavioral Patterns and Pitfalls of U.S. Investors," a 2010 Library of Congress report prepared for the Securities and Exchange Commission, excessive trading often causes investors to underperform the market.

THE POWER OF TIME Note: Though past performance is no guarantee of future results the odds of guarantee of future results, the odds of achieving a positive return in the stock market have been much higher over a 5- or 10-year period than for a single year.

Another study, "Stock Market Extremes and Portfolio Performance 1926-2004," initially done by the University of Michigan in 1994 and updated in 2005, showed that a handful of months or days account for most market gains and losses. The return dropped dramatically on a portfolio that was out of the stock market entirely on the 90 best trading days in history. Returns also improved just as dramatically by avoiding the market's 90 worst days; the problem, of course, is being able to forecast which days those will be. Even if you're able to avoid losses by being out of the market, will you know when to get back in?

Positive

KEEPING YOURSELF ON TRACK

It's useful to have strategies in place that can help improve your financial and psychological readiness to take a long-term approach to investing in equities. Even if you're not a buy-andhold investor, a trading discipline can help you stick to a longterm plan.

Remember that everything's relative

Most of the variance in the returns of different portfolios is based on their respective asset allocations. If you've got a well-diversified portfolio, it might be useful to compare its overall performance to the S&P 500. If you discover you've done better than, say, the stock market as a whole, you might feel better about your long-term prospects.

Current performance may not reflect past results

Don't forget to look at how far you've come since you started investing. When you're focused on day-to-day market movements, it's easy to forget the progress you've already made. Keeping track of where you stand relative to not only last year but to 3, 5, and 10 years ago may help you remember that the current situation is unlikely to last forever.

Use cash to help manage your mindset

Having some cash holdings can be the financial equivalent of taking deep breaths to relax. It can enhance your ability to act thoughtfully instead of impulsively. An appropriate asset allocation can help you have enough resources on hand to prevent having to sell stocks at an inopportune time to meet ordinary expenses or, if you've used leverage, a margin call.

A cash cushion coupled with a disciplined investing strategy can change your perspective on market downturns. Knowing that you're positioned to take advantage of a market swoon by picking up bargains may increase your ability to be patient.

*market*commentary =

"The market climbs a wall of worry" is an old stock market axiom and boy do we have a lot to worry about:

Fear of recession, inflation or deflation? Presidential politics, Britain exiting the Eurozone, the Middle East problem, China, Russia and on and on. You get the idea. Plenty of black clouds out there to keep concerns high on many investors agenda and yet the market is near all-time highs. What gives? To quote Jeff

Know what you own and why you own it

When the market goes off the tracks, knowing why you made a specific investment can help you evaluate whether those reasons still hold. If you don't understand why a security is in your portfolio, find out. A stock may still be a good long-term opportunity even when its price has dropped.

Tell yourself that tomorrow is another day

The market is nothing if not cyclical. Even if you wish you had sold at what turned out to be a market peak, or regret having sat out a buying opportunity, you may get another chance. If you're considering changes, a volatile market is probably the worst time to turn your portfolio inside out. Solid asset allocation is still the basis of good investment planning.

Be willing to learn from your mistakes

Anyone can look good during bull markets; smart investors are produced by the inevitable rough patches. Even the best aren't right all the time. If an earlier choice now seems rash, sometimes the best strategy is to take a tax loss, learn from the experience, and apply the lesson to future decisions.

*Data source: Calculations by Broadridge based on total returns on the S&P 500 Index over rolling 1-, 5-, and 10-year periods between 1926 and 2014.

Saut, Raymond James' chief investment officer, "What they fail to appreciate is that the stock market is a discounting barometer. The problems have been so widely publicized that they have become popular fare in the media that even my 85-year old Aunt Doris called to ask if the world is coming to an end?". "My point is, if all the popular media venues know all the negatives, then 90%+of our problems are already baked into stock prices." Jeff thinks and I agree that we are still in a long term secular bull market that has several years to go. Expect the markets to continue to fluctuate but continue gradually higher.

This material is being provided for information purposes only and is not a complete description, nor is it a recommendation. Any opinions are those of Pat Cain Wealth Solutions, Inc. and not necessarily those of Raymond James. The information has been obtained from sources considered to be reliable, but Raymond James does not guarantee that the foregoing material is accurate or complete. Past performance is not a guarantee of future results. There is no guarantee that these statements, opinions or forecasts provided herein will prove to be correct. Investing involves risk and investors may incur a profit or a loss.